Dear Mr. President,

I am called Renata Schmalb Amorim, a fourteen year old student from Brazil. During the last years of your mandate, I have been brainstorming on some ideas and plans that, in my opinion, could helpful for your administration on foreign and domestic policy. This, as a consequence will help boost cooperation between U.S.A and other countries on the use of natural resources.

Natural resources are very important to human wellbeing. We cannot live without clean air to breathe and clean water to drink. Nature makes human development possible so we need to protect the world's ecosystems. The U.S.A has a big supplies of coal, copper, lead, iron, natural gas, wood and others but, at the same time, the country need to import a lot of resources, mainly oil and ores. We need to remember that these supplies are exhaustible and we need to use them with care. And for this reason, I suggest that we replace some materials, for example, gasoline for diesel.

More than ever, I believe we need to follow the UN's plan: the Sustainable Development Goals (SDG's) and use it to the development of the United States by promoting inclusive and sustainable growth, full and productive employment and decent work for all, so we will have a green development.

Being in confrontation with any country it is not healthy either. The political agreements have many benefits like: it helps in the decrease of violence against children, reduce inequalities and helps in the refugee crisis (nowadays, for every 100,000 persons, 311 are refugee). So, for me, the best thing to do about this topic is avoid as much as possible conflicts and make political agreements.

These are my plans and ideas to help in a better world. I hope that them could help on the administration of foreign policy, influencing in the partnership with others countries and also on domestic policy, bringing some ideas of climate actions, responsible consumption and production and helps to achieve peace.

Yours sincerely,

Renata Schmalb Amorim
